

Color | Color Palettes | Events

How to Make a Big Design Impact With Color

Interior designer Sabrina Alfin discusses ways to use bold hues, playful patterns and layered neutrals

Bryan Anthony July 12, 2020

Houzz Editorial Staff; writer, design enthusiast, reader, avid traveler.

More

♥ Save

💬 Comment 14

👍 Like 48

Share

As part of San Francisco Design Week in June, designer Sabrina Alfin of Sabrina Alfin Interiors sat down with Shannon Kaye of Kelly-Moore Paints for a virtual conversation about the impact of using color in the home. Alfin shared her expertise on how to incorporate a bold color, use color to complement a room's style, layer in neutrals, play up colorful patterns and subtly add color to a kitchen.

When it comes to selecting colors for any room, Alfin said it's important to first understand the vision and purpose of the space. "In general, using color is all about setting a mood. Do you want it to feel energetic? Do you want it to feel calming? It really depends on what the goal is for the space," she said. As a designer, "the way you figure that out is by talking to your clients and understanding who they are, what they gravitate toward and how they want to live their lives."

Go Bold With Color

The wall color in this San Francisco bedroom was inspired by the existing artwork above the bed, Alfin said. "The couple wanted to use that piece in the bedroom, so I said, 'Let's take the watery teal in it and blow it out as much as possible.'"

Shop Related Categories

Paint & Wall Coverings

Sponsored

Kaplan Architects, AIA

★★★★★ 23 Reviews

San Francisco's Leading Full Service Architect & Design Studio

People who liked this story also liked

Why People Are Loving Soft, Soothing Colors at Home Full Story >

Fall on the Wall: Decorating With Rich Reds, Browns and Oranges Full Story >

Pair Dark Green With Gold for a Sumptuous, Satisfying Look Full Story >

Nature's Color Wisdom: Lessons on Color From the Great Outdoors Full Story >

Perfect Palettes: How to Find the Right Colors for Your Home Full Story >

The designer then used gray bedding, a wood headboard and print pillows to balance the space. “It has a sophistication without taking itself too seriously, which is very much the personality of these clients as well,” Alfin said.

She recommended finding the right balance when using a bold paint color in a room. “From an emotional point of view, you want to walk into a room and feel that it’s harmonious but definitely not boring,” Alfin said.

Work With a Room’s Style

Adding color can be a great way to complement the style of a room, Alfin said. Her clients wanted this beach house in Pacific Grove, California, to feel like a vacation getaway from the moment they walked in the door.

“They wanted to feel as if they were leaving the rest of the world behind,” Alfin said. “So we surrounded them with watery blue on the walls and a sandy sisal rug on the floor.”

The house is intended to feel like an extension of its beachside location. “You probably hear many architects and designers use that type of language, but it’s actually quite true,” Alfin said. “Your setting is very often an indicator of the direction you’d like to go.”

Create Layers With Neutrals

Alfin recommended layering neutrals in “a tone-on-tone manner that mixes in layers of similar colors in a way that there’s nothing that really screams out at you.”

Breaking the Rules: Brighten Up Without Relying on White Full Story >

Will These 9 Paint Colors Take Over Homes in 2020? Full Story >

Maison & Objet: 10 Color Trends for Home Design in 2020 Full Story >

Pantone Picks a Purple for Its 2018 Color of the Year Full Story >

Choosing Color: 5 Fun Options for 1 Sunny Entryway Full Story >

Sponsored

J5 Homes

★★★★★ 3 Reviews

Bay Area's Well-Established & Collaborative Builder

For this New Rochelle, New York, living room, designer Tamu Green of Lux Pad Interiors used subtle patterns that add depth to the neutral color palette. A large club chair and ottoman are covered in an abstract-patterned fabric, and the cream-toned area rug has a relief pattern that gives it depth. The potted plant adds a touch of green.

“There are a lot of people who do neutral interiors who don’t layer in enough color, texture and visual interest, so it ends up looking bland,” Alfin said. To keep a neutral space from feeling boring, she likes to bring in pattern, texture, objects and art that keep it “from feeling a little too one-note.”

Susan Nelson Interiors

Play With Colorful Patterns

When it comes to coordinating fabrics, Alfin said, it’s all about scale. “Even though you might be mixing different colors and type of patterns, if the scale or size of the patterns work, it will pull it all together.”

Designer Susan Nelson used a variety of colors and patterns in this Washington, D.C., living room, which features a paisley armchair, a striped ottoman, geometric-print Roman shades and a variety of patterned throw pillows. Because the scales of the patterns are similar, the space feels cohesive and balanced.

Designer tip: When selecting patterns for a room, Alfin likes to start with the paint palette. She can take a paint swatch with her into a showroom while she chooses fabrics. “This way I have an idea of what I’m looking for and I don’t have to look at everything.”

Sharp and Grey Interiors

Add Color Subtly in the Kitchen

“I’m very much of the mind that kitchens should be every bit as colorful as the rest of the house,” Alfin said. The key to having homeowners feel comfortable with using color in a kitchen is making sure they love the selection. “Of course it’s a lot easier to paint a wall than it is to rip out tile, but if the clients love the color they won’t want to rip it out.”

Still, Alfin recommended using color in a more subtle manner in kitchens. “We like to use color in a subtle way, whether it’s through accent tiles, fabrics or lower cabinets,” she said.

This Pennsylvania kitchen remodel by Sharp and Grey Interiors showcases color used in a subtle but powerful way. While most of the kitchen features classic white materials, such as the marble countertops, perimeter cabinets and subway tile backsplash, the design team wove in shades of blue with a painted island base, accent tiles above the range and a rug.

Designer tip: When it comes to adding color to a kitchen or any other room, lighting is crucial. “There’s nothing worse than being in an enclosed space that only has artificial lighting,” Alfin said. “If the budget allows for it, we like to bring in natural light by adding skylights, clerestory windows and enlarging existing windows.”

More on Houzz

Read more about designing with color

See more coverage of design events

Browse millions of home photos for inspiration

♥ Save

💬 Comment 14

👍 Like 48

Share

Comments (14)

Showing all Languages ▼

See 11 more comments

thinkof129

The bedroom is beautiful. But I wonder, why put all the effort into the wall behind the bed? You don't spend that much time looking at it. Our accent wall is actually at the foot of the bed.

👍 Like 1

28 days ago

CGinNoCO

Wow! I am so impressed with all of these as I am such a chicken when it comes to from a more impressive number of colors than even a painter when it comes to color.

👍 Like

28 days ago

Roberta Heinz

In the last picture, the center island medium blue has a slight lavender undertone. What brand & name of color is it?

👍 Like | 1

25 days ago

Write a comment

Read Related Stories

Color Palettes

Why People Are Loving Soft, Soothing Colors at Home

By Gwendolyn Purdom

Color has the ability to make us feel calm in a chaotic world — and that's reflected in new palettes for the home

Full Story

42

Color Palettes

Fall on the Wall: Decorating With Rich Reds, Browns and Oranges

By Jennifer Ott

For your interiors, take a cue from nature's colorful seasonal offerings

Full Story

48

Color Palettes

Pair Dark Green With Gold for a Sumptuous, Satisfying Look

By Victoria Harrison

Deep green is a color of the moment, and these rooms show how to combine it with its best friend — glimmering gold

Full Story

55

Color Palettes

Nature's Color Wisdom: Lessons on Color From the

How to Make a Big Design Impact With Color

Great Outdoors

By Laura Gaskill

Nature offers much inspiration for using color at home. Get some starting points and links to deeper guides for each hue

Full Story

4

Color Palettes

Perfect Palettes: How to Find the Right Colors for Your Home

By Gabrielle Chariton

Color specialists and interior design experts share their tips for selecting the best shades

Full Story

48

Color

Breaking the Rules: Brighten Up Without Relying on White

By Jess McBride

White doesn't always perk up a dimly lit space. Instead, choose a color that radiates warmth

Full Story

10

Colors of the Year

Will These 9 Paint Colors Take Over Homes in 2020?

By Jennifer Ott

Major paint companies choose colors of the year that are fresh, upbeat and mostly on the cool side

Full Story

82

Events

Maison & Objet: 10 Color Trends for Home Design in 2020

By Claire Tardy

At the Paris trade fair, beige had a strong showing, along with soft nature hues, saturated colors and light-dark combos

Full Story

55

Colors of the Year

Pantone Picks a Purple for Its 2018 Color of the Year

By Jennifer Ott

Move over, Millennial Pink. Pantone's color experts think Ultra Violet is ready to influence design choices next year

Full Story

286

Color Palettes

Choosing Color: 5 Fun Options for 1 Sunny Entryway

By Jennifer Ott

See how adding a touch of uplifting paint to an all-white entry perks up the personality of a home

Full Story

85

Working With Pros

10 Times to Hire a Color Consultant

By Laura Gaskill

Choosing a color scheme for your home can be a challenge. See when you might want help from a trained pro

Full Story

42

Events

Color Trends From the 2019 Maison &amp; Objet Design Show

By Agnès Carpentier

If you're ready for a change from white, gray or a single bold hue, you'll like this news out of the Paris trade fair

Full Story

110

Colors of the Year

Will These 10 Colors Be Big in 2018?

By Jennifer Ott

From greenish blues to deep, dark hues, there's something for everyone in these paint companies' predictions

Full Story

144

Exterior Color

Choosing Color: 1 Home Has Fun With 5 Different Color Schemes

By Jennifer Ott

See a home's potential for transformation with several new hues. Do you have a favorite?

Full Story

228

Events

Raw, Unique and Local: What's Trending in Nordic Design

By Helle Sindal

Houzz visits Helsinki Design Week in the Finnish capital for a peek into the present and future of Nordic design

Full Story

17