ARCHITECTURE / RESIDENTIAL - UNDER 5,000 SF

A retired, downsizing couple wanted to create a thoughtful retreat that also celebrated solid materials and forms. Jeffrey Dungan envisioned a “simple program” that included just two bedrooms, sculptural interior spaces and a one-car garage/party pavilion. He employed a rustic stone on the exterior and antiqued limestone detailing around windows and doors. Says judge Steven Gambrel: “The spirit of place is derived from the permanence of the materials and the detailing of the masonry. The enormity of character makes the relatively small structure strong and meaningful.”
