The holidays are about bringing family and friends together, and this keeping room is a great gathering spot. Janie Hirsch combined classic furnishings with treasured antiques to create a sophisticated mix of comfort and style. A pair of sofas faces off in front of the stone fireplace, their chocolate brown mohair upholstery and cane frames emanating understated elegance. There's a comfy armchair as well as benches behind one of the sofas that can be pulled up for extra seating. "I like the furnishings to be manageable for a large crowd," says Hirsch.

Even the color scheme is appropriate to the holidays; traditional green and red hues accent the room, though not in the usual shades. Instead, sage and paprika spice up the area in a fresh way. The window treatments, for instance, are fashioned from a sage green that's banded with paprika, then trimmed with a stunning velvet-and-glass-ball fringe. It's just another example of the sparkling touches that make this room so inviting.
