

"It's eccentric but rustic," says Marie Turner of Trove. "We go all the time."

Carrying everything from 1980s hardware to pieces from the 17th century, Trove (279 Ocean Ave., Laguna Beach, 949-376-6646) from gallery owner is another favorite. "It's eclectic but rustic," says Marie. "We go all the time." The designers rely on this Laguna Beach gem for clients' curiosities from the 18th century. Another of Marie's favorites is Artisan de Villiers (hardware for artists in Paris, Mattias Swedling, designer and producer in L.A. After 100, by Dennis Chatham, hangs above the head of the bed in the Jung Cabin, completed between 1920s, current trends from a top-line game.

ing Mattias Swedling and Artisan de Villiers glassware, as well as "amazing" mohair blankets from Finland and "beautiful" artwork.

"Of course we go there for clothes," Marie says, but Newport fashion standout 27Store's (2242 West Coast Highway, Newport Beach, 949-442-4422, www.27store.com) now also offers home accessories. You'll find several items such as Dora leather ottomans which the ladies picked up for the family's Sun Valley getaway. They also like the store's hand-blown glassware—baskets and vases—from the Portland offices of Eagan.

The Lee Stanton warehouse (1500 Minerva Ave., Newport Beach, 949-439-2750, leestanton.com) is where there is the know can match up amazing antiques right after they come into port from Europe and before they've sent up to the dealer's L.A. showroom. "He has a wonderful eye that comes from a wealth of knowledge," Marie says. "You know you're getting the real deal." *

“It’s eccentric but rustic,” says Marie Turner of Trove. “We go all the time.”

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP
At Trove: Astier de Villatte dinnerware is handmade to order in Paris. Matteo Bedding, designed and produced in L.A. After Six, by Dennis Ekstrom, hangs above the bed. East of the Sun by Jorg Dubin, displayed behind 1930s carnival heads from a ring-toss game.

Carrying everything from 1950s furniture to pieces from the 17th century, Trove (370 Ocean Ave., Laguna Beach; 949-376-4640; trovegallery.com) is another favorite. “It’s eccentric but rustic,” says Marie. “We go all the time.” The designers rely on this Laguna Beach gem for clients’ big Matteo Bedding and Astier de Villatte dinnerware orders, as well as “amazing” mohair blankets from Finland and “beautiful” artwork.

“Of course we go there for clothes,” Marie says, but Newport fashion standout A'Maree's (2241 West Coast Highway, Newport Beach, 949-642-4423; amarees.com) now also offers home accessories. You'll find sourced items such as Dosa leather ottomans which the ladies picked up for the family's Sun Valley getaway. They also like the store's hand-blown glassware—beakers and vases—from the Portland artisans at Esque.

The Lee Stanton warehouse (1588 Monrovia Ave., Newport Beach, 949-650-5750; leestanton.com) is where those in the know can snatch up stunning antiques right after they come into port from Europe and before they're sent up to the dealer's L.A. showroom. “He has a wonderful eye that comes from a wealth of knowledge,” Marie says. “You know you're getting the real deal.” •